Harmony Seminary,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

THE annual vacation of one month will expire and the Seminary will be re-opened on the first day of September.

No pains or expense have been spared to render this institution as desirable as any in the United States for the education of Young Ladies.—It will be under the care of the rev. A. D. Campbell, pastor of the church, who will occasionally, deliver lectures on Rhetoric and History. The various other branches of English Literature, will be confided to a gentleman, whom an experience of twenty years in some of the first schools in the United States, has amply qualified for the task. A young lady who studied under the best teachers in London, has lately arrived for the express purpose of giving instructions in Music and the French Language. The board, washing and hours of recreation are under the eye of a careful Matron; and it is the determination of those concerned in the School, that nothing shall be wanting that industry, talents and attention can accomplish, to improve the minds of the pupils, to render their deportment pleasing, and their dispositions amiable.

THE TERMS ARE,

For tuition in the English and French languages, Geography, History, Rhetoric, Composition, Drawing Maps, Writing, Arithmetic, and board and washing $150 per annum. For Music, an extra charge of $6 per quarter, and the stationary that the pupils require will be furnished at the lowest price.

Harmony is situated 25 miles North of Pittsburgh, on the road to Meadville and Erie. To persons unacquainted with the teachers every necessary information can be obtained by application to the Rev. Francis Herron, the Rev. Joseph Stockton, or to Mr. Bakewell, Pittsburgh.

N B. If required, Lectures on Botany will be delivered, by a proper person at a moderate charge.

Pittsburgh, August 20, 1819.

A house in Wood between Front and Second streets, consisting of a Store room completely finished—a large dry cellar and a convenient dwelling house for a small family attached.—Apply as above

To the Electors of Allegheny County.

FELLOW CITIZENS.

FROM solicitations of a number of my friends, I am induced to offer myself a candidate for the office of SHERIFF, at the ensuing election. Should you think me worthy of your suffrages, no exertions on my part shall be wanting to fill the office with fidelity, to the best of my abilities.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servt.

JAMES CROSSAN.

March 12, 1819.

To the Electors of Allegheny county

AS I have been placed before the public as a candidate for the office of SHERIFF at our next election, with my full approbation, and as hints have been given in some parts of the county, that I had given up the idea of standing a poll, I consider it a duty I owe myself to state thus publicly, that I have not declined. The duties of a very confining business have prevented me from making that personal declaration to my fellow citizens, which has become usual on these occasions, yet I trust, that as my whole life has been passed in this county, sufficient information as to my qualifications or unfitness for the office, may be easily acquired by any individual who may think fit to make the enquiry. If the citizens of Allegheny shall think proper to favor me with their voice on the day of election, I shall feel highly gratified, for more reasons than one; if another of the candidates be preferred to me, I shall acquiesce without a murmur, convinced that every member of our society ought to exercise independenly, the full right of suffrage.

Your humble serv't.

MORGAN NEVILLE.

Pittsburgh, July 6.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

FOR the first time in my life I appear before you as a candidate for office, should you deem me capable and worthy of your confidence I solicit your suffrages at the ensuing election for the office of SHERIFF, for Allegheny county; pledging myself, should I be elected, to discharge the duties of the office with impartiality.

WM. B. FOSTER.

Pitt township, August 13.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

FELLOW CITIZENS—As I have been placed before the public as a candidate for the office of SHERIFF at our next election, with my full approbation, I now state publicly that I have determined to stand the poll, and do hereby solicit your votes. The necessary attention to my business through these times of difficulty, has hitherto prevented me from making that personal declaration to you, which has become so usual on such occasions; yet I trust that as my whole life has been passed in this county, and as I once had the honor of serving you in the Sheriff's Office, sufficient information as to my qualifications may be easily acquired. If the citizens of Allegheny county should favor me with their voice on the day of election, I shall remember with gratitude this mark of public confidence.

WM. M'CANDLESS.

July 16.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

FELLOW CITIZENS—My name has appeared amongst a number of others in the public prints of this place, as a candidate for the office of SHERIFF, at the next election, and as I have been well assured that when I was spoken of at a political meeting lately held, it was publicly stated that I had declined standing a poll for that office, I think it right to mention that as I did not offer myself at first, neither did I ever say or hint to any person that I intended to decline. The compliment of having been mentioned by my fellow citizens in that way, is too flattering to be lightly treated—But as it is the privilege of every citizen to exercise his own judgement on the day of election, I should think solicitation would be rather offensive than pleasing, and will therefore only observe, that I feel grateful for being put in nomination, and shall be highly so if successful.

I am yours very respectfully,

JAMES B. OLIVER.

Pittsburgh, July 23.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

Fellow Citizens.

NOTWITHSTANDING the repeated assertions of some that I had declined standing a pole altogether; and of others that I had suffered my name to be mentioned merely for the purpose of promoting the election of a favorite candidate; I now candidly and honestly assure you that I mean to be one of the disinterested twelve who have solicited your votes. In short it would be no small gratification to me to be your next sheriff. I, in the mean time, fully convinced that you will exercise your judgement on the occasion, remain whether successful or unsuccessful

Your Fellow-Citizen,

WILLIAM LECKY.

Pittsburgh, July 16.

THE subscriber informs his friends and the public in general, that he has commenced the above business in all its variety, in Fifth, between Wood and Market streets, opposite to Mrs. M'Cullough's Tavern, where he is determined to execute every thing in his line, in a manner equal if not superior to any in the Western country. As the the subscriber calculates to make Pittsburgh his future place of residence he is determined to carry on his business in a way that will be advantageous to him and his customers. Country Book-sellers and others, will find it to their advantage, by sending the Books they want bound to the subscriber.

He hopes from his attention to business to share a part of public patronage.

Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 24, 1819.

By a resolution of the 1st March, 1819, the House of Representatives of the U. States, requested that the Secretary of the Treasury would transmit to Congress at an early period of their next session, "a general statement of the condition of the Bank of the United States and its Offices, similar to the return made to him by the Bank; and a statement exhibiting, as nearly as may be practicable, the amount of capital invested in the different chartered banks in the several states and the district of Columbia; the amount of notes issued by those banks and in circulation; the public and private deposits in them; the amount of loans and discounts made by them, and remaining unpaid; and the total quantity of specie they possess: and that he be requested also to report such measures as in his opinion may be expedient to procure and retain a sufficient quantity of gold and silver coin in the United States, or to supply a circulating medium, in place of specie, adapted to the exigencies of the country, and within the power of the government.

In pursuance of this resolution, the Secretary of the Treasury has addressed a circular, under date of 23d July, 1819, to the officers of the different chartered Banks in the several states, asking from their courtesy the information so much desired. "To meet fully," he observes, "the requisitions of the Resolution, the report should exhibit the state of all the chartered Banks of the Union on the same day. It is therefore, suggested, that such statements as may be forwarded to this Department, in compliance with the foregoing request, may exhibit the state and condition of the respective banks on the 30th day of September next. The same statement of the affairs of said banks, on the 30th of September, 1813 & 1815, which were in operation prior to those periods, would probably furnish important information in the investigation of the several subjects presented in the resolution.

It is important that the statements should be forwarded immediately after the 30th of September next, in order that the report required by the resolution may be submitted to Congress at the next session."

EDINBURGH REVIEW.

For sometime past, an opinion has prevailed very generally among the readers of this Review, that it is not conducted with the same ability as formerly. We certainly look in vain for that character of uniform excellence, that spirited expression which breathed from every lineament of the original work. Occasionally, traces are discovered of the masculine good ssnse—the happy talent for illustration, and the pointed wit which formerly delighted us; but the general tone is, we think, decidedly lowered. Many of the political articles are obviously written in a careless, superficial manner, and several of the literary reviews strike us, as quite tame and mawkish. A satisfactory reason for the alledged falling off, is probably to be found in a late publication that has reached us, the design of which is to give a sketch of the Scottish Bar. Mr. Jeffrey, the former conductor of the Review, to whom it is indebted in a great measure for its celebrity has devoted himself, it would seem, to the forum, and amidst the engrossing cares and anxieties of an arduous profession has probably found it necessary to devolve on others the task of criticism.

We will subjoin an extract from the work to which reference has been made

"Mr. Jeffrey" says this writer, "is a short and active looking man, with a great appearance of vivacity in all his motions. His face is one which cannot be understood at a single look—perhaps it requires, as it certainly invites, a long and anxious scrutiny before it lays itself open to the gazer. The features are neither handsome nor even very defined in their outlines; and yet the effect of the whole is as striking as any arrangement either of more noble or more marked features, which ever came under my view. The forehead is very singularly shaped, describing in its bend from side to side a larger segment of a circle than is at all common; compressed below the temples almost as much as Sterne's; and throwing out sinuses above the eyes of an extremely bold and compact structure.—The mouth is the most expressive part of his face, as I believe it is of every face. The lips are very firm, but they tremble and vibrate even when brought close together, in such a way as to give the idea of an intense, never-ceasing play of mind. There is a delicate kind of sneer almost always upon them, which has not the least appearance of ill-temper about it, but seems to belong entirely to the speculative understanding of the man.

"Mr. Jeffrey's voice is neither a musical nor a noble one; but it has such a sharp, acute, thrilling power, that even its whisper can be heard distinctly at a very great distance, and that too in the midst of a multitude of voices, of more apparent power and compass. There is something about it which at once convinces you that it proceeds from no insignificant person—a decided, nervous tone, which cuts deep into the ear. His pronunciation wretched—a mixture of provincial English, with undignified Scotch, altogether snappish and offensive; and which would be quite sufficient to render the elocution of a more ordinary man utterly disgusting; but the flow of his eloquence is so overpoweringly rapid, so unweariedly energetic, so entirely unlike every other man's mode of speaking, that the pronunciation of the particular words is quite lost to one's view in the midst of that continual effort which is required, in order to make the understanding, even the ear of the listener, keep pace with the glowing velocity of the declamation.

"Like Cranstoun, this splendid rhetorician was many years at the bar, before his success was at all proportioned to his talents. The reputation enjoyed by his Review was both a friendly and a hostile thing to him as a barrister; for it excited universal attention to him whenever he made any appearance at the bar, and yet it prevented many people from soliciting him to undertake the conduct of their cases, by inspiring a sort of fear, that his other, and more delightful, and better rewarded pursuits, might perhaps prevent him from doing full justice to matters of every-day character—the paltry disputes of traders, and the mean tricks of attornies. All this, however, has been long since got over, and Jeffrey is now higher than almost any of his brethren in his general character of an advocate, and decidedly above them all in more than one particular department of practice. The same powers which have enabled him to seize with so firm a grasp the opinion of the public, in regard to matters of taste and literature, give him, above all, sway unrivalled over the minds of a jury.—There cannot be a finer display of ingenuity than his mode of addressing a set of plain conscientious men, whom it is his business to bamboozie. He does not, indeed, call up, as some have dared to do the majesty of sleeping passions, to overawe the trembling indecision of judgment. The magic he wields is not of that high cast which makes the subject of its working the conscious yet willing slave of the sorcerer. He is a more cunning, but quite as effectual a species of tempting. He flatters the vanity of men, by making them believe, that the best proof of their own superiority will be their coming to the conclusion which he has proposed; and they submit with servile stupidity at the very moment that they are pluming themselves on displaying the boldness and independence of adventurous intellect.—In crimmal trials, and in the newly-established jury court for civil cases, Mr. Jeffrey is now completely lord of the ascendant."—Ibid. pp. 526—30.

MESSRS SCULL AND NEVILLE:

I attended yesterday's town meeting, and was sorry to find so few persons who came forward to give their opinion on the subject of clearing out the obstructions of the river. I confess to you, sirs, that the prosperity of Pittsburgh lies nearest to my heart. Her interest is inseparably connected with the prosperity of every person who lives here. How then does it happen that when the citizens are called together to consult on a measure of vital importance to the interests of the city, that so few are willing to speak in public? The reason is obvious, modesty and want of confidence in their own persons.

A few respectable gentlemen, bred to the practice of the law, get up and deliver their sentiments with ease and confidence; their chaste language, flow of words, and happy illustrations, captivated the hearers without convincing the judgement. The vote is taken without opposition, and the opinions of some half a dozen passes for the unanimous opinion of the whole.

Few persons unaccustomed to speak in public are willing to expose themselves to be sneered at by speaking after one of those professional gentlemen. I approve very much the plan of purchasing the right of the mud raising machine, but prefer that the price should be specified in cash without being tacked to 300 Hdds. of sugar. Let me explain myself.

Say sugar will cost in Louisiana,	8 1-2 cts. lb.
Freight up	3 1-2
Making the cost in Pittsburgh	12 cts.
Leaving a clear profit of	10 cts.
Which gives on 300 Hdds. of 1000lbs.	$30,000
Together with 1500 cash, making	31,500

A sum much too large for the right of the machine. It is said that we pay for the sugar in our own manufactories, admitted, but I hope the observation will have the effect of bringing out the opinions of others, who, if they are too modest to speak in court, surely can put their ideas on paper.

SEA SERPENT—AGAIN.

Captain Pearce, of sloop Friendship from Portsmouth, arrived at this port yesterday, reports that on Sunday, at 9 A. M. near Squam Bar, he saw ahead & crossing the bow, the Sea Serpent. He had a distinct view of him, as did a passenger, Mr. Varney, and all the crew.—His protuberances were particularly noticed. It was so calm at the time, that they were obliged to sweep the vessel, and the weather so fine, that they had a distinct view of him three times, and within 100 yards. The source from whence we obtain this information is of the most respectable kind.

From the Boston Gazette.

A gentleman on his return from the western country, informs us, that while passing through Tennessee, he met a travelling house, drawn by six horses, of twenty nine persons in the whole. They reported themselves from the District of Maine, bound to Alabama, where they intended to inhabit the same.

AGRICULTURAL.

By a letter from Bucks county, Pennsylvania, we learn, that "the drought continues, and surpassed any ever recollected here before. We have not had a rain to wet plough deep since April; and for the last six weeks not sufficient to lay the dust. The crops of corn and buckwheat must entirely fail in this neighborhood. Hay and oats produce only two-thirds to former years; and many people who have large farms, are now foddering their cattle as in winter. Water is extremely scarce also; and if we are not blessed with rain shortly I know not what the consequence will be."

CHARLESTON, Aug. 6.

An Anchor weighing nearly 4000 lbs. was found in this harbour the day before yesterday. It is supposed to have belonged to the British frigate Acteon, which was blown upon the memorable attack of the Palmetto Fort, by Sir PETER PARKER, on the 28th of June, 1776. It was thickly incrusted with shells, &c. but is remarkably sound and perfect, considering that it has been buried in the deep for more than forty years.

FASHIONABLE EXTRAVAGANCE.

Last week we inserted the address of the Carlisle weavers, detailing the extreme wretchedness; that 1000 of their body had to subsist on six shillings, or 132 cents, per week: we now present the other side of the picture. Let the reader take a view of what follows, and say if there does not exist, amongst the British, a system of extravagance and folly equal, if not beyond the most profligate days of the Romans, when an entertainment is said to have cost the revenue of a family for the whole year, and the lives of many gladiators to boot.—With the exception of the last item of expenditure, we believe the British nobility are no ways behind hand.

London, June 9. The Countess of Darnley on Monday evening gave a splendid Fancy Ball at the Hanover square Rooms. The grand entrance was illuminated with a profusion of variegated lamps. The band of the Coldstream Regiment of Guards were stationed there, who performed as the company arrived. The staircase leading to the Grand Concert Room, which was fitted up in a most tasteful manner for dancing, was decorated with shrubs and flowers. The floor of the ball room was beautifully painted, representing various devices, flowers, birds, &c. with an elegant border.

Dancing commenced a little before eleven o'clock, with a new quadrille.

There were two refreshment rooms, where coffee, tea, orgeat, lemonade, ices and fruits were served. There were two supper rooms; the tables were covered with all the delicacies of the season. The wines were of the rarest qualities.

The company present exceeded 1000. The ladies assumed the costumes of different nations, and of different ages—and from their variety as well as elegance, were highly attractive—each lady having naturally chosen the habit that was the best adapted to the display of her person. The gentlemen were chiefly in military uniform or in full dress; some few indeed SPORTED fancy dresses, and some felt themselves uneasy by being rendered too conspicuous.

Among the company were—their royal highnesses the dukes of Kent, Sussex and Gloucester, in their field marshal's uniforms; the duke of Wellington, in uniform of his regiment; the Persian ambassador was most splendidly dressed with a profusion of diamonds; Sir Gore Ousley, bart. was dressed as a Persian, with chios and beard; Lady Castlereagh as a Spanish princess very elegant, her ladyship wore a profusion of diamonds; the dutchess of Wellington wore a beautiful Swiss dress; the countess of Darnley an elegant Neapolitan; Lady Clifton, an elegant Polish dress; the two missess Brownlow, rich Spanish dresses; the earl of Belfast, a rich Polish dress; General Bligh, and elegant Highland dress; the ladies Bligh, Venetian dresses, with diadems of gold an silver. It was half past six o'clock yesterday morning when the company broke up.

From the Journal of Paris.

Some singular travellers, recently arrived at Bourdeaux, excite great curiosity. The principal one is Cornelius Taykaonta, chief of the Oneida nation to the west of New-York; his suit is composed of seven persons three of whom are women. It appears that a strong desire to visit Europe, and particularly France, has made him abandon the United States, where he received a small pension from the American government. We may however, presume, that he will find in public curiosity a manner of exercising hospitality, less simple, but more abundant than that which is practised in the forests of the Ohio, the Mississippi and the Delaware. These Savages were to exhibit themselves publickly, the 8th of this month in the saloon of the Athenæum of Bordeaux.

France at this moment possesses 246 ships of war, among which are 48 line of battle ships and 49 frigates—11 of the first and 4 of the last description are now constructing.

Three hundred suicides took place in Paris in five months.

A loan of ten million is to be negociated in England for the Prussian government.

The Waterloo prize money granted by Parliament, is thus apportioned—Commander in chief 60,000 pounds; General officer, 1,250; Field officer 420; Captain 90; Subaltern 33; Sargeant 19; Rank and File £2 10. The Duke of Wellington's share is equal to 24,000 rank and file.

The Paris papers are full of liberal discussions of the Chamber of Deputies on the propriety of recalling the emigrants. Among those recalled are Marshal Soult, General Pire Dirot, (now in Philadelphia;) Count Real, (now at his farm near Lake Ontario;) Baron Pommeruiel; Foucher d'Aubigney; Eschanerlaux; Thebaud, and Lemillard.

Some change is expected in the form of government in the different states of Germany. Austria appears immovable in the midst of the general agitation. They wish to maintain the aristocratic institutions in the two kingdoms of Saxony and Hanover. But it is not believed they can succeed.

Germany appears much agitated—in every part the principles of just & free government are canvassed & supported. They have been occupied in the second Bavarian assembly on the important discussion upon the introduction of the trial by jury—the publicity of the courts, as well of civil as criminal jurisdiction—nothing is yet decided. In some parts of Europe, the courts are not open to the public—the prisoners, the advocates, and the judges, are only allowed to enter the room.

The inhabitants of Bavaria on the Rhine have been alarmed by the report of the demand of a great German power to take possesion of Landau, and garrison it for the future. The rumors, it is believed, will be contradicted.

At a meeting of the Democratic citizens of the Borough of Butler and its vicinity, held at the Court House, on Thursday the fifth day of August, A. D. 1819, agreeably to previous notice.

John Potts Esq. was chosen chairman, and Jacob Mechling, Jr. Esq. Secretary.

Resolved, That William Beatty, John Bredin, Esq Moses Sullivan, John Negley, Esq. and Henry Evans, Esq. be appointed a committee of correspondence, and that they give notice to the Democratic citizens of the county of Butler to meet at the court house in the Borough of Butler, on Thursday evening the 31st inst. for the purpose of nominating suitable persons to be supported for Senators, and one suitable person for Representative, for this county, in conjunction with the persons nominated in Allegheny county, for Representatives, and of appointing a committee of two persons to meet the committees, or delegates that are or may be appointed in Allegheny, Beaver and Armstrong counties, on Friday the 3d day of September next at the house of James Carnahanin, Deer township, Allegheny county.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the chairman and secretary, and published in all the newspapers in this Senatorial district.

JOHN POTTS, Chairman.

Attest.

JACOB MECHLING, Jr. Sec'ry.

To the Democratic Citizens of the county of Butler.

FELLOW CITIZENS,

The undersigned, at a meeting of the democratic citizens of the borough of Butler and its vicinity, on the 5th inst. were appointed a committee of correspondence for the ensuing year, and for the purpose of giving notice to the democratic citizens of this county to meet at the Court House in the borough of Butler, on Tuesday evening, the 31st inst. for the purpose of nominating suitable persons as candidates for senators, to be supported at the ensuing election, and a suitable person for representative for this county, in conjunction with the persons nominated in Allegheny county for representatives, and to appoint a committee of two persons to meet the delegates or committees that are or may be appointed in Beaver, Allegheny and Armstrong counties, on Friday the 3d of September next at the house of James Carnahan, in Deer township, Allegheny county.

In discharge of the duty thus assigned to your committee, we would observe to our fellow citizens, that in consequence of the court being adjourned, the harvest then being on hands, the usual mode of ascertaining the public sentiment as to the candidates to be supported, could not be pursued, so as to enable us to act in concert with the citizens of the other counties with which we are connected. It was therefore considered that perhaps, as fair and as full an expression of the sentiments of the public would be obtained in a general meeting of the democratic citizens of this county, as if time had permitted the usual mode to be pursued. Every citizen must be aware of the necessity and propriety of a fair and full expression of the public sentiment, as respects the candidates who ought to be supported at the ensuing election; we therefore fondly hope, that as the time for the general meeting is fixed on the week of the court, that there will be a general attendance of the democratic citizens of the county.

We are very respectfully your Fellow Citizens.

PITTSBURGH.

Tuesday, August 24, 1819.

Messrs. Scull & Neville,

The partiality and friendship of my neighbours of Elizabeth township, have brought forward my name, and expressed a desire that it should be placed upon the ticket for the Assembly at the approaching election. Whilst I return them my thanks for this mark of their esteem, I must beg leave to decline being a candidate. Private considerations at this time induce me to withhold my name; and, in addition to this, I believe this section of the country would be well represented by the selection of such a man as Garret Wall, Esq.

JOHN ROBISON.

Aug. 19, 1819.

Almost every vessel which arrives from Europ at an eastern port, is crowded with passengers who have left their native land in pursuit of a country where the means of comfortable subsistence are within the reach of industry, and where the constitution and laws guarantee to every individual the fruits of that industry. No consideration can be more important than that of at once finding employment for these persons, and of making the most beneficial distribution of the additional labour thus acquired How is this to be done? Commerce is at an end, agriculture can find no market for her grain, her cotton, or her tobacco. It is calculated in a respectable newspaper, that upwards of 6000 persons are out of employ in and about the city of Baltimore, and the same stagnation to greater or less extent is visible throughout the country. Under these circumstances it is time that the doctrine should be excluded, which we often hear laid down as an axiom of political economy, that manufactures cannot succeed with a people who have at command an unlimited extent of territory. Aside from the folly of this exclusive devotion to agriculture in multiplying the products of the earth only that they may rot in our hands for want of purchasers, there is another consideration which ought not to be overlooked.—The great object of individual exertion as of a correct national policy is to increase the sum of happiness. Why then should we banish almost beyond the reach of our laws and of our institutions, those who seek an assylum amongst us, when, by a judicious distribution of industry, the means of livelihood in the most populous districts of our country might be made so easy? Men are of a social gregarious disposition, and all our national sentiments and sympathies result in a great measure from the free interchange of opinions, and the animating influence of example. The poor refugee who is wearied with the agitation of Europe, & who flies from it as from the neighbourhood of a volcano, is forced to become the pioneer of civilization in a savage, cheerless frontier, where he sighs in vain for the endearing intercourse of his early years We seem to have no Terminus in our mythology. What good purpose is accomplished by this restless propensity to change, which breaks up all the settled habitudes of life, and spreads our scattered population over a boundless surface of country? with less chance of education, of happiness, and in short of all those qualities which render men estimable citizens; their labour, at the same time, is valueless, because blindly directed to one exclusive object, & they are obliged to run in debt in order to procure the articles which necessity or habit may render indispensable.

Our Foreign Market.

By a Royal Edict dated Lisbon, 11th May 1819, a duty is imposed of eighty reis on wheat, and one hundred reis on Indian corn per Alqueire, instead of the twenty now paid. This is stated to be done in consequence of "the clamors of the owners and tenants of tillage lands against the extraordinary and unlimited importation of foreign grain preventing the sale of the national, tending to the ruin of their agriculture." "His Majesty taking all this into consideration and also without equalising the price of foreign grain so that the national may enter into competition the agriculture of these kingdoms will soon be entirely lost, as those lands have been already left this year unused, and some tenants given up their leases, hereby orders," &c.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

"Misery makes a man acquainted with strange bed fellows," says the poet; and it is truly astonishing, as well as consolatory, to reflect how people get reconciled to the most grievious mishaps which may befal them. A person who has lately been incarcerated in our city for debt, was visited the other day by some one on urgent business, who respectfully sent in his name—An answer was returned with much politeness, that indeed the gentleman was just about setting down to dine with a friend; but if the person would "call again" at a more seasonable hour, or leave a written memorandum of his business it should be attended to.

COMMUNICATED.

Messrs. Scull & Neville.

On Friday evening the performance commenced with an address by Miss M'Bride, a little girl only ten years of age, whose wonderful powers in serious recitation have obtained her the appellation of the 'wonderful prodigy.' Her voice is excellent, her countenance expressive, and her gesticulations inimitably fine. We are informed, that while at Washington, she delighted all the wise men at the seat of government, by reciting at a levee of the President's lady. In her manners she forcibly reminds us of Mrs. Barnes. Miss M'Bride spoke in a most animated and correct style, Mr. Vinton's celebrated Ode, styled 'An Address to the Masonic Lodge,' and was again greeted with reiterated bursts of applause.

We are also highly delighted with Miss M'Bride, Jr. she bids fair to equal her sister.—I sincerely wish that on the next evening's performance, the inhabitants of Pittsburgh will patronize their rising merit.

The meeting on Monday last at Washington of the heads of departments, has eventuated in (see the article from the Washington City Gazette) a determination to send the Hornet back to Spain with dispatches for the American minister! If this is really the fact, it is characteristic of the meekness and forbearance exercised by the United States towards Spain—a slap on one cheek is sufficient to provoke, and with the utmost humility the other is turned to be slapped also. But before placing implicit confidence in the statement of the editor it would be well enough to enquire how he came possessed of his information?—Are the secrets of the cannet reserved exclusively for his private ear?—or was he honoured with a seat at the meeting? If either, he is entitled to all due confidence.

Fed. Rep.

A letter received on Friday by a gentleman in New York, from a corre-pondent on Red River, says—"Two grand expeditions are now under way for the Spanish country—500 families are now making ready to take possession of that part of Red River within the Spanish lines (as fixed by the late treaty) & which come within ten miles of my plantation. Another is also making up to take possession of St. Antoine, under the command of Gen. Long."—Ibid.

MASONIC.

It will be recollected that that superb edifice, the Masonic Hall, was almost entirely destroyed by fire, on the ninth of March last. By the munificence of the craft, aided by the generous contributions of their fellow citizens, a sum of money was almost immediately raised, sufficient to rebuild the Lodge: and such has been the zeal and activity of the superintendants, that the rafters for the roof were raised this day. A spacious suite of rooms, fifty-six feet by thirty has been added to the main building; which, when completed, will render it one of the most roomy and elegant structures in the city.

In viewing it this morning, we were forcibly struck with a placard of the following tenor, and which, we are informed, has been rigorously enforced:—

"No spirituous liquors allowed in this house; nor are the men permitted to leave their work to go and get it."

Signed by the Superintendant.

The Concord (N. H.) Patriot observes that a Stone, weighing eighteen tons, and drawn by seventy oxen, lately passed through that town. This stone was wrought by the state convicts, and is designed for the floor of a portico in Boston. It was to be conveyed through the canal, to its place of destination.

New Haven, Aug. 9.

NOBLE ACT.—As the Huntress Packet, (capt. Beecher,) was returning from New-York last week, a child of Mr. Holey, by some unlucky accident, fell overboard. The wind blew fresh, and the unhappy parents beheld in agony their only son on the brink of eternity, without one ray of hope that he could be rescued. In this distressing moment, while the vessel was passing rapidly through the water, the helms man Joseph Stevens, sprang from the quarter deck, committing himself to the waves, with the noble resolution of saving the infant or perish in the attempt. He seized the child as it was sinking, and held him above water to convince the wretched parents that he was still alive. The packet by this time had left them about half a mile, and was with much difficulty rounded too. Capt. Beecher immediately manned his boat pushed to their assistance. Just as he reached them, poor Joe's strength was exhausted, and he sunk, leaving the child to its fate. Capt. Beecher, with great presence of mind, as he seized the child with one hand, plunged the other under water up to the arm-pit, and luckily succeeded in raising the sailor. Both Joe and the child were apparently dead. After rolling them in salt, however, and applying all the restoratives which are usually employed on such occasions, they both revived, and we are happy to state are doing well. The rich may boast of their nobility; but never did any rich man perform a more disinterested act of benevolence—never did any prince achieve a more honorable one, than did this poor sailor, in restoring to the arms of its parents their only child, by snatching it from the grasp of death, at the risk of his own life.

The N. Y. Columbian, of Tuesday evening remarks, "As often as we have had occasion to notice the genuine bravery of the gentlemen of our navy, yet it gives us equal satisfaction to record the attendant virtue of generosity among them—for it is an established fact, that bravery and generosity are inseparable companions. We have been led to this remark from a knowledge of the fact, that the officers attached to the American squadron in the Mediterranean subscribed the sum of $3,000 to erect a marble monument over the remains of capt. Thomas Gamble, commander of the United States' sloop of war Erie, who died at Pisa, in October last."

COMMERCIAL.

An American merchant in Amsterdam, writes to his friend in Philadelphia, by the ship Elizabeth, as follows:—"Commerce remains in a complete state of stagnation over all Europe, notwithstanding the great competition and desire to do business. All imaginable springs have been drawn to give it life, but they have slackened again, without producing the effect—almost every speculation results in a loss—goods are sacrificed every day—confidence is destroyed, and failures the only news heard on the exchanges. This is the true state of business over all Europe, and it will soon be worse in America, if our merchants pursue the course pointed out to them by foreign agents and commission merchants, whose interest it is to persuade the making of shipments."

FOR —— ON SUNDAY.

Advertisements of Steam Boats to sail on an excursion of pleasure to some place in this vicinity, to a Turtle Party, or Fishing, are becoming as common, as formerly it was common to say on these subjects, 'Sundays excepted.' I am sensible, that, in noticing this circumstance, I may incur the charge of Bigotry. But, if there is any thing in the Christian religion which is worthy of our regard, and if any of its precepts ought to influence our conduct in this life, the command to remember the Sabbath day and keep it Holy, is imperious. There are but few but who believe our Spirits are immortal, and that there is something for us to do in our present state of existence to prepare for 'that bourne whence no traveller returns.' If we have been created by the power of God, if we derive our being, our enjoyments, and our hopes, from his blessed Providence; if he has commanded us to devote ourselves to his service generally, and to dedicate a part of our time expressly to acts of devotion to him; and if he has so far condescended as to designate that part of time which shall more particularly be set a part to preparation for eternity; how can we, with a conscience void of offence, wantonly transgress and trifle with this blessed commandment? How can we, who would resent the charge that we were not Christians, in the general sense of the word, make this holy day the subject of amusement, and trifle away its passing hours regardless of its origin? How can we, for whom the anxious and fervent prayer of paternal affection has so often ascended to the throne of mercy, so disregard every admonition of conscience and duty as to make this day exclusively one of amusement and dissipation! Shall we, the descendants of the Pilgrims, trifle with those subjects which to them were sacredly important! Shall we neglect those privileges for which our ancestors sacrificed their dearest earthly connections & attachments? I cannot but hope, that, a little reflection will convince us of the impropriety of this worse than waste of time: and that we shall feel it our reasonable duty to worship God in his holy temple on those days which are devoted to his service.—N. Y. Spec.

THE LAY PREACHER.

"It is hard for a Printer to please every body."

The above is a trite but true remark when we consider the diversity of taste in reading. And indeed, no observation could be more correct. Many censure the printer for copying articles of news from other papers of the same city or place. "'Pshaw, say they, I've read this before—away with your John Thompson's news, and give us some original matter." "I will," says the good natured printer—and in a short time, in pops another, who takes no other paper, and says, "I wish you would give us some news, and leave your long NEW pieces away." The printer, obliging and obsequious as a candidate for the Sheriffalty, says, "we'll split the difference, and give a little of every thing."—Up he bounces, and runs to the post office to bring an arm full of papers sent him in exchange, by his brothers of the type. Now for news—he turns—and turns again. Nothing worth extracting; her a man runs away with another's wife; hands put that in; here a villain kills his neighbour; lash it down: here two fools fought a duel; mark that, bless me, a pumpkin as large as a hogshead; that's for farmers; a man advertising for a wife; that's for old maids. In short, the whole supply of news, with very trifling exceptions, is hardly sufficient for the prattling tongues of gossip over a dish of tea; but something must be put in the paper, so go on,

"Stale news, by George!" cries one: "insipid, miserable stuff!" reiterates another. What now, Mr. Printer, to make war between nations and elements; announce comets, earthquakes, tornados, visions, and the discovery of inhabitable lands in the centre of the earth, by Symes: to say the Sea Serpent travelled by land from Boston harbour to Pittsburgh; to assert that Bonaparte had escaped from St. Helena, and beheaded Louis XVIII. all won't do. "Zounds! what liars the printers are," every body exclaims, and the poor printer would stand at his press, scratching his head like a boy when he broke his master's beer mug. Nothing is now left but to throw ourselves on the generosity of our readers, to promise endeavours, and beg them to reflect, that "where there are many men, there are also many minds.—Anon.

From the Boston Gazette.

The following order passed by the Great and General Court, in the early settlement of this province, Sept. 1639, shows that a ridiculous costume is not peculiar to the present time.

"Whereas there is much complaint of the excessive wearing of lace and other superfluities, tending to little use, but to the nourishing of pride and exhausting mens estates, and also an evil example to others. It is therefore ordered, that hereafter no person whatever shall presume to buy or sell any manner of lace in this jurisdiction. And that hereafter no garment shall be made with short sleeves, whereby the nakedness of the arms may be discovered; and such as have garments already made with short sleeves, shall not hereafter wear the same unless they cover their arms to the wrists with linen—And that hereafter no person shall make any garment for women with sleeves more than half an ell wide. And for present reformation of immoderate great sleeves and some other superfluities, as immoderate great breeches, double ruffs &c. this court hath thought fit to suspend all proceedings respecting them, in expectation, that the officers and members will speedily proceed against all such offences.'

ARABIC DEATH SONG.

A manuscript Journal of a late traveller in Egypt affords the following beautiful little poem, to which are prefixed these remarks:

"The currant was against us, and as we came near the city, (Cairo) the wind lulled almost into a calm. While we were busy at the oar, we heard some unusual sounds on the river side, and our watermen suddenly threw themselves on their faces, and began a prayer. A procession was seen a few moments after, advancing from a grove of date trees at a short distance from the bank. It was a band of Bedouins, who, in one of their few ventures into the half civilized world of Lower Egypt for trade, had lost their Chief by sickness. The train were mounted, and the body was borne in the middle of the foremost troop in a kind of palanquin, rude, but ornamented with a strange mixture of savageness and magnificence, that we find not unfrequently among the nobler barbarians of the East and South.

The body was covered with a lion's skin; a green and gold embroidered flag waved over it; and some remarkably rich ostrich feathers on the lances made the capitals and pillars of this Arab hearse. The tribe seemed not to observe our boat, though they moved close to the shore; their faces were turned to the setting sun, which was then touching the horizon in full grandeur, with an immense canopy of gorgeous clouds closing around him in a shade of deepening purple. The air was remarkly still, & their song, in which the whole train joined at intervals, sounded most sweet. Their voices were deep and regular, and as the long procession moved slowly away into the desert with their diminishing forms, and fading chorus, they gave us the idea of a train passing into eternity. The following is a translation of their song or hymn, such as I could collect it from the unclassic lips of a Cairo boatman.

"Our father's brow was cold; his eye
Gazed on his warriors heavily;
Pangs thick and deep his bosom wrung,
Silence was on the noble tongue;
Then writhed the lip, the final throe
That freed the struggling soul below.

"He died!—Upon the desert plain
Fling loose his camel's golden rein.
He died!—No other voice shall guide,
O'er stream or sand its steps of pride.

"Whose is the hand that now shall rear
Terror of man, the Sheik's red spear?
Lives there the warrior on whose brow
His turban's vulture plume shall grow?
He's gone, and with our father fell
Thy son of glory, Ishmael!"
